Do you know the names of the elements from their symbols? Todd Helmenstine Crosswords are not only fun, but can be a good way to practice spelling unknown words, such as element names on the periodic table. The clues to this printable crossword puzzle are the symbols for the first several elements. A crossword answer key is available on the next page. A crossword puzzle is a pun in which the player is given a hint and the number of letters. The player then fills a grid of boxes by finding the right words. Liverpool journalist Arthur Wynne invented the first crossword puzzle. Arthur Wynne was born on 22 June 1871 in Liverpool, England. He emigrated to the United States at the age of nineteen. He first lived in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and worked for the Pittsburgh Press newspaper. An interesting note to the side was that Wynne also played the violin in the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra. Later, Arthur Wynne moved to Cedar Grove, New Jersey and began working for a New York-based newspaper called New York World. He wrote the first crossword puzzle for the world of New York, published on Sunday, December 21, 1913. The publisher had asked Wynne to invent a new game for the newspaper's Sunday entertainment section. Arthur Wynne's first crossword puzzle was initially called a cross of words and was diamond-shaped. The name later passed to the word crusade, and then due to an accidental typo the hyphen was abandoned and the name became crossword puzzle. Wynne based his crossword puzzle on a similar but much older game played in ancient Pompeii which translated from Latin into English was called Magic Squares. In Magic Squares, the player is assigned a group of words and must arrange them on a grid so that the words will read them in the same way in all and down. A crossword puzzle is very similar, except instead of receiving the words that the player has clues to. Arthur Wynne has added other innovations to the crossword puzzle. While the first puzzle was diamond-shaped, he later invented horizontal and vertical puzzles; and Wynne invented the use of adding empty black squares to a crossword puzzle. The crossword puzzle in a British publication was published in Pearson's Magazine in February 1922. The first New York Times crossword puzzle was published on February 1, 1930. According to the Guinness Book of Records, the first collection of crossword puzzles was published in the United States in 1924. The Cross Word Puzzle Book was the first publication of a new collaboration by Dick Simon and Lincoln Schuster. The book, a collection of crossword puzzles from the New York World newspaper, was an instant success and helped found publishing giant Simon & Schuster, which continues to produce crossword books to this day. In 1997, Crossword Weaver was patented by Variety Games Inc. Puzzle.
